

"Where it all begins..."

We all know that computers are now vital parts of our lives. They are all around us; at home and work.

Most often than not, many of us do not have a slightest idea on how the darn things work. Most of us do not care, until when we need to get them serviced or need to get new ones.

Where do we go? What do we need to look? Where do we begin???

Attend one of our free basic computer training seminars. It will cover essential subjects that you can use when looking for the right services and the right computers for yourself.
